MANDATES(2). As you may know, in March this year the Scottish Parliament voted in favour of requesting a referendum on Scottish independence. In response the UK government said that the time is not right for an independence referendum. With this in mind, please tell me the extent to which you agree or disagree with the following statements?
There should be an independence referendum in the next two years if the SNP does as well or better than it did in the 2015 general election

Scottish Public Opinion Monitor - May 2017

MANDATES. As you may know, in March this year the Scottish Parliament voted in favour of requesting a referendum on Scottish independence. In response the UK government said that the time is not right for an independence referendum. With this in mind, please tell me the extent to which you agree or disagree with the following statements?

- Summary table -

Base : All

	There should be an independence referendum in the next two years if the SNP gains the majority of seats in Scotland at the general election	There should be an independence referendum in the next two years if the SNP does as well or better than it did in the 2015 general election	There should not be an independence referendum in the next two years regardless of the general election results	There should be an independence referendum in the next two years regardless of the general election result
