Reuters/Ipsos Core Political Data

These are findings from an Ipsos poll conducted June 2-5, 2023. A sample of 1,056 Americans ages 18+ were interviewed online for this survey using the probability-based KnowledgePanel®.

This included 355 Democrats, 289 Republicans, and 306 independents.

The precision of the Ipsos Core Political is measured using a margin of error which includes the design effect error. In this case, the poll has a margin of error of plus or minus the following percentage points:

3.2 for All Adults, 5.5 for Democrats, 6.1 for Republicans, and 5.9 for independents.

The data from this survey was weighted to the U.S. current population data using gender, age, education, ethnicity, metropolitan status, region and political party identification.

All sample surveys and polls may be subject to other sources of error, including, but not limited to coverage error and measurement error. Where figures do not sum to 100, this is because of rounding. See page 17 for full methodology.

Methodology

This Ipsos poll was conducted June 2-5, 2023, by Ipsos using the probability-based KnowledgePanel®. This poll is based on a nationally representative probability sample of 1,056 general population adults aged 18 or older.

The margin of sampling error for this study is plus or minus 3.2 percentage points at the 95% confidence level, for results based on the entire sample of adults. The margin of sampling error takes into account the design effect, which was 1.11. The margin of sampling error is higher and varies for results based on other sub-samples. In our reporting of the findings, percentage points are rounded off to the nearest whole number. As a result, percentages in a given table column may total slightly higher or lower than 100%. In questions that permit multiple responses, columns may total substantially more than 100%, depending on the number of different responses offered by each respondent.

The survey was conducted using KnowledgePanel®, the largest and most well-established online probability-based panel that is representative of the adult U.S. population. Our recruitment process employs a scientifically developed addressed-based sampling methodology using the latest Delivery Sequence File of the USPS – a database with full coverage of all delivery points in the U.S. Households invited to join the panel are randomly selected from all available households in the U.S. Persons in the sampled households are invited to join and participate in the panel. Those selected who do not already have internet access are provided a tablet and internet connection at no cost to the panel member. Those who join the panel and who are selected to participate in a survey are sent a unique password-protected log-in used to complete surveys online. As a result of our recruitment and sampling methodologies, samples from KnowledgePanel® cover all households regardless of their phone or internet status and findings can be reported with a margin of sampling error and projected to the general population.

The data for the total sample were weighted to adjust for gender by age, race/ethnicity, education, Census region, metropolitan status, and household income, and political party identification. The demographic benchmarks came from the 2022 Current Population Survey (CPS) and the political party identification benchmark came from high quality probability polls.
