ENTREPRENEURIAL SPIRIT

The Ipsos Africa Centre for Development Research & Evaluation is part of our global Public Affairs division, which is a leading provider of research and evaluation services globally to the public sector. In Sub-Saharan Africa we work from our 8 country offices to lead external primary & secondary quantitative and qualitative research studies, and conduct a range of evaluations of third-party projects and programmes. We provide evidence-based recommendations at both a strategic and tactical level to a wide range of multi-lateral and bilateral donors, foundations, international and local NGOs. Ipsos leads the way in application of new methods of information collection and analysis, and on the delivery of high quality data sets and analytical reports, alongside the ability to create impact through integrating recommendations into program design and improvement.

We work across sectors, but particularly focus on MNCH, SRH, trade and markets-systems development (particularly in agriculture and financial access), education, environment, governance, gender and youth. More widely Ipsos provides market research for FMCG and service industries, but that is not part of the work of our division.

SOCIAL RESEARCH AND EVALUATION LEAD, IPSOS IN TANZANIA

We are seeking a Social Research and Evaluation Expert to lead our Africa Centre for Development Research and Evaluation team in Tanzania. This is an exciting role heading up a vibrant team that focuses on leading research and evaluation projects for clients in the development sector.

The role will enable you to work on some fascinating projects, and build and strengthen the team in Tanzania, and implement our vision and mission in Tanzania.

KEY RESPONSIBILITIES

- Provide vision and direction in the localization of our regional strategy for development clients.
- Expand work through engagement with those needing research and evaluation ensuring continued flow of funds to the office
- Grow the team, train and mentor them in project management, research and evaluation skills, and on how to provide a high level of client service to funding partners.
- Implement research and evaluation projects from start to finish, working with our internal field research and data analytics teams.
- Represent Ipsos to the government, bilateral/multilateral institutions and with NGOs and in local and international meetings and conferences.
- Uphold the Ipsos brand and reputation as a reliable partner in the delivery of research and evaluation and as a key voice in our sector of focus. Spread the work of Ipsos through publishing of papers, memos and articles.
- Work in a positive and steadfast way with other teams within Ipsos Tanzania, around Africa and globally, pulling out all the stops to ensure perfect project delivery.

KEY QUALIFICATIONS

- You have a strong technical understanding of research and evaluation, through overall methods and from sampling, through instrumentation, analysis and reporting and are able to design, implement and write reports on research and evaluation projects.
- You have a minimum 10 years' experience in working for a consultancy working in the development sector or for a donor-funded organization, with a strong component of research and / or evaluation at the design and reporting level (experience in conducting fieldwork only would not qualify here).
- You must have lead external evaluations of donor-funded projects.
- You have worked in a business environment providing services to clients
- You must have experience writing winning proposals.
- You have expertise in one of our Ipsos Tanzania sectors of focus (Public health, Agriculture, Market systems development/financial deepening, Environment, Gender, Environment or related).
- You have excellent oral and written English to international standards.
- You are able to organize, mentor, engage and motivate a multicultural team.
- You are ready and willing to integrate into a hardworking and fun team.
- Ideally a Tanzanian citizen or have the right to work in Tanzania, but this is also open to candidates from outside Tanzania.
