Reuters/Ipsos Poll: Perceptions on Race in America

Reuters/Ipsos Poll shows Democrats' attitudes towards race are changing.

Washington, D.C., August 19, 2019 — A new Reuters/Ipsos public opinion survey of 4,436 Americans finds that Democrats are more likely to believe black Americans are treated less fairly than white Americans— 39 percent said black people are treated less fairly than white people at their places of employment, an 8-point increase from 2016 (31%). Similarly, 68 percent of Democrats report they believe black people are treated less fairly by police, a 14-point increase since 2016 (54%).

The same poll finds that Republicans' perceptions of black people has remained relatively unchanged since 2016. Just 7 percent of Republicans report that black people are treated less fairly than white people at work, and 26 percent report they are treated unfairly by police. In 2016, 8 percent of Republicans reported that black people were treated less fairly than white people at work, and 24 percent were treated unfairly by police.

The poll also finds that 61 percent of Americans are supportive of finding a pathway to citizenship for illegal immigrants, 44 percent are supportive of building additional fencing along the U.S.-Mexico border, and 76 percent are supportive of making it easier for highly skilled workers to work in the U.S.

PRESS RELEASE

About the Study

These are some of the findings of an Ipsos poll conducted between July 16-22, 2019 on behalf of Thomson Reuters. For this survey, a sample of 4,436 adults age 18+ from the continental U.S., Alaska and Hawaii were interviewed online in English. The sample includes 3,879 registered voters, 1,821 Democratic registered voters, 1,551 Republican registered voters, and 378 Independent registered voters. Weighting was then employed to balance demographics to ensure that the sample's composition reflects that of the adult population according to Census data and to provide results intended to approximate the sample universe. The precision of Ipsos online polls is measured using a credibility interval. In this case, the poll is accurate to within ± 1.7 percentage points, 19 times out of 20, had all Americans been polled. The credibility interval will be wider among subsets of the population. All sample surveys and polls may be subject to other sources of error, including, but not limited to coverage error, and measurement error. The poll also has a credibility interval plus or minus 1.8 percentage points for registered voters, plus or minus 2.6 percentage points for Democratic registered voters, plus or minus 2.8 percentage points for Republican registered voters, plus or minus 5.7 percentage points for Independent registered voters.
