RIGHT DIRECTION VS. WRONG TRACK MONITOR

A snapshot of the national mood in 27 countries
Six in ten across 27 countries say that things in their country are on the wrong track.

Q: Would you say things in your country are on the right track, or are they off in the wrong direction?

- Right direction: 39%
- Wrong track: 61%

Headline findings:

- The proportion of respondents globally who say their country is on the wrong track (61%) is the same as last month and indeed is in line with our first reading of the year back in January.
- The countries whose citizens are most dissatisfied with where things are heading in August are South Africa (84%), Belgium (82%), Chile (76%), the US (74%) and Hungary (73%).
- Only in four countries do more respondents say their country is heading in the right direction than the wrong direction (Saudi Arabia, Malaysia, India and Australia). There is a 50:50 split in Canada.
Across the 27 nations, six in ten say that things in their country are on the wrong track.

Higher percentages share this view in South Africa (84%), Belgium (82%), Chile (76%), the US (74%) and Hungary (73%).

There has been a dramatic change in the US: In January, it was the fifth most satisfied with where things are heading (with 56% happy with the direction of travel. Today, it ranks as the fourth least optimistic.

TOP 5 GLOBAL ISSUES

Country rankings for the top global concerns
#1: CORONAVIRUS

Almost one in two worldwide (46%) consider Coronavirus to be one of the biggest issues facing their country today. This marks a change to the decline in concern seen since we began tracking it in April.

Japan and Australia are currently the countries most concerned about coronavirus, having seen 11-19-point increases respectively since July.

In August, COVID-19 once again becomes the number one issue in Belgium, France and Germany.

A total of 14 countries have Coronavirus as their single greatest concern (up from July’s 11). It is also top in Israel - alongside healthcare.
Unemployment is currently the second greatest worry worldwide with four in ten respondents selecting it as one of the most important issues facing their country today.

This score is consistent with last month, but up 5 points since April 2020. Pre-pandemic, the last time this issue reached 40% was March 2016.

South Africa is now most concerned about jobs. Italy and Spain are close behind with more than six in ten in each indicating anxiety about this issue.

Russia continues to be the country most concerned about Poverty & social inequality with a score nearly twice the current global average of 30%.

Chile, Hungary and Germany remain in second, third and fourth place on this measure.

There are a further six countries where one-third or more consider Poverty & social inequality one of the most important issues facing their country today.

At the beginning of the year, Poverty & social inequality was the leading issue worldwide, with 34% of our respondents reporting it as a top concern in January 2020.
Financial/Political Corruption remains the fourth most important issue worldwide.

South Africans are currently most concerned about this. The nation has seen an 11-point increase since last month.

Over 50% of respondents in Hungary and Russia put this on their list of top concerns.

Financial/political corruption had not dropped below 30% before the Coronavirus crisis.
#5: CRIME & VIOLENCE

Crime & violence is currently the fifth global worry.

Sweden is most concerned of all countries about Crime & violence today as a 16-point increase from last month takes it to 56%. Mexico drops to #2 while another spike in concern Argentina (+8) means it moves into 3rd place for worry about crime.

Other notable increases since the previous month include Turkey (+16), Chile (+7) and France (+7).

The 24% score for Crime & violence is still relatively low compared to pre-COVID figures. In January 2020, Crime & violence was at 30%.

METHODOLOGY

The survey is conducted monthly in 27 countries around the world via the Ipsos Online Panel system. The countries included are Argentina, Australia, Belgium, Brazil, Canada, Chile, France, Great Britain, Germany, Hungary, India, Israel, Italy, Japan, Malaysia, Mexico, Netherlands, Peru, Poland, Russia, Saudi Arabia, South Africa, South Korea, Spain, Sweden, Turkey and the US.

For the results of the survey presented herein, an international sample of 19,016 adults aged 18-74 in the US, South Africa, Turkey, Israel and Canada, and age 16-74 in all other countries, were interviewed between July 24th 2020 and August 7th 2020. Approximately 1000+ individuals participated on a country by country basis via the Ipsos Online Panel.

The precision of Ipsos online polls are calculated using a credibility interval with a poll of 1,000 accurate to +/- 3.1 percentage points and of 500 accurate to +/- 4.5 percentage points. For more information on the Ipsos use of credibility intervals, please visit the Ipsos website.

Weighting has been employed to balance demographics and ensure that the sample’s composition reflects that of the adult population according to the most recent country census data.

A survey with an unweighted probability sample of this size would have an estimated margin of error of +/- 3.1 percentage points for a sample of 1,000 and an estimated margin of error of +/- 4.5 percentage points for a 500 sample 19 times out of 20.

In 17 of the 27 countries surveyed, internet penetration is sufficiently high to think of the samples as representative of the wider population within the age ranges covered: Argentina, Australia, Belgium, Canada, France, Germany, Hungary, Israel, Italy, Japan, Netherlands, Poland, South Korea, Spain, Sweden, Great Britain and United States.

Brazil, Chile, India, Malaysia, Mexico, Russia, Peru, Saudi Arabia, South Africa and Turkey have lower levels of internet penetration and so these samples should not be considered nationally representative, and instead be considered to represent a more affluent, connected population.

These are still a vital social group to understand in these countries, representing an important and emerging middle class.
