Reuters/Ipsos Poll: Large Issue Poll #6: Main Issues

Topline Findings

Washington, DC, December 29, 2021 – A Reuters/Ipsos poll from earlier this month (Dec 13-17) found that over half of Americans (56%) believe the national economy and the country generally is headed in the wrong direction. This is driven primarily by Republicans (81%), but over half of independents (59% and 63% for each) agree as well. Forty percent of Americans believe the Democratic party has the better plan for healthcare, compared to only 27% who believe it is Republicans. Over half of Republicans (54%) say they would support Trump as the Republican nominee for President in 2022, Ron DeSantis is a distant second at 11%, 14% say they aren't sure. Nearly three-quarters (73%) of Americans say they are concerned about COVID-19, this includes 88% of Democrats, 58% of Republicans, and 71% of independents. The same proportion (73%) agree that inflation is a very big concern for her and 69% say the wealthiest Americans should pay higher taxes.

Forty percent of Americans believe the U.S. Congress is mostly dysfunctional, but occasionally can get things done. A third of Americans (32%) know that if the Supreme Court overturned Roe v. Wade it would result in laws governing abortion to be made at the state level, allowing it to remain legal in some states and become illegal in others. 16% believe abortion would become illegal in the U.S. immediately. Overall though, Americans are split over their opinions on abortion. One-quarter of Americans (25%) believe it should be illegal in most cases, while 26% believe it should be legal in most cases, and 23% believe it should be legal in all cases. 14% are unsure, and 12% (mostly Republicans (19%)) believe it should be illegal in all cases. They are also split on who should decide whether abortion is legal or not: 38% say the federal government, 34% say each state government, and 28% are unsure. Less than half (48%) approve of President Biden's performance in office.

PUBLIC POLL FINDINGS AND METHODOLOGY

About the Study

These are some of the findings of an Ipsos poll conducted between December 13 through 17, 2021 on behalf of Thomson Reuters. For this survey, a sample of 4,407 adults age 18+ from the continental U.S., Alaska, and Hawaii was interviewed online in English. The sample includes 2,048 Democrats, 1,592 Republicans, and 517 Independents.

The sample was randomly drawn from Ipsos' online panel, partner online panel sources, and "river" sampling and does not rely on a population frame in the traditional sense. Ipsos uses fixed sample targets, unique to each study, in drawing a sample. After a sample has been obtained from the Ipsos panel, Ipsos calibrates respondent characteristics to be representative of the U.S. Population using standard procedures such as raking-ratio adjustments. The source of these population targets is U.S. Census 2018 American Community Survey data. The sample drawn for this study reflects fixed sample targets on demographics. Posthoc weights were made to the population characteristics on gender, age, race/ethnicity, region, and education.

Statistical margins of error are not applicable to online non-probability polls. All sample surveys and polls may be subject to other sources of error, including but not limited to coverage error and measurement error. Where figures do not sum to 100, this is due to the effects of rounding. The precision of Ipsos online polls is measured using a credibility interval. In this case, the poll has a credibility interval of plus or minus 1.7 percentage points for all respondents. Ipsos calculates a design effect (DEFF) for each study based on the variation of the weights, following the formula of Kish (1965). This study had a credibility interval adjusted for design effect of the following ($n=4,407$, $DEFF=1.5$, adjusted Confidence Interval= ± 3.2 percentage points).

The poll also has a credibility interval of plus or minus 2.5 percentage points for Democrats, plus or minus 2.8 percentage points for Republicans, and plus or minus 5.2 percentage points for Independents.
