What is Ipsos legal basis for processing your personal data?

Ipsos requires a legal basis to process your personal data. The legal basis for processing by us is your consent to take part in the Healthy Ireland Survey. If you wish to withdraw your consent at any time, please see the section below covering 'Your Rights'.

How will Ipsos use any personal data including survey responses you provide?

Firstly, responding to this survey is entirely voluntary and any answers are given with your consent. Ipsos takes its information security responsibilities seriously and applies various precautions to ensure your information is protected from loss, theft or misuse. Security precautions include appropriate physical security of offices and controlled and limited access to computer systems.

Your personal information is securely encrypted at all stages. This includes while your responses are being recorded by the interviewer, while being transferred to the servers and while being retained on the servers.

How long will Ipsos retain my personal data and identifiable responses?

Ipsos will only retain your data in a way that can identify you for as long as is necessary to support the research project and findings. In practice, this means that once we have satisfactorily reported the anonymous research findings to the Department of Health, we will securely remove your personal, identifying data from our systems. For this project we will securely remove your personal data from our systems by December 2023.

Where will my personal data be held and processed?

All of your personal data used and collected for this survey will be stored by Ipsos in data centres and servers within Ireland, the UK and the European Economic Area. This is done in compliance with the General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR).
