Q5(b) Only 7% of the taxes raised in London are retained by London local government - that is the London Mayor and the London Boroughs.
This is far less than in other cities around the world where it ranges from 20% to 50%.
Central government redistributes almost all of the taxation paid in London and determines spending priorities.
In consideration of this, to what extent do you agree or disagree with the following statements?
(b). London's local government should be given greater freedom in the way it uses money raised from London taxpayers
