(JAN17)Q12(a). As you may know, most workers in Britain have a legal right to go on strike, but this does not apply to some jobs such as the Police and the Armed Forces.

Some people have called for more action to be done to reduce industrial strikes on essential services such as rail and the NHS.

Others say it is important that these workers have the same rights to strike as does any other industry, even if that means sometimes these services are disrupted.

For each of the following, please tell me whether you think that people working in this service should have their right to strike limited, or should they be able to strike as any other industry.
NHS medical workers, e.g. doctors and nurses

(JAN17)Q12(a). As you may know, most workers in Britain have a legal right to go on strike, but this does not apply to some jobs such as the Police and the Armed Forces.

Some people have called for more action to be done to reduce industrial strikes on essential services such as rail and the NHS.

Others say it is important that these workers have the same rights to strike as does any other industry, even if that means sometimes these services are disrupted.

For each of the following, please tell me whether you think that people working in this service should have their right to strike limited, or should they be able to strike as any other industry.
