(JAN16)Q15(a). I'd now like you to think about the Living Wage.

The living wage is a salary which is high enough for workers to have a normal standard of living, meaning they have enough money to be able to afford everyday things like food, transport and paying bills. It has been proposed that companies should be banned from paying their shareholders dividends unless their staff earn the living wage. Please tell me to what extent, if at all, you support or oppose this idea?

(JAN16)Q17. As you may know there is a debate currently on whether or not Britain should replace its Trident submarines which are nearing the end of their life. These are the submarines from which Britain were to launch nuclear missiles if it was ever to do so. In a recent interview, Jeremy Corbyn, the Labour leader, said if these submarines are replaced they 'don't have to have nuclear warheads on them'. This would mean the submarines would be replaced but do not carry nuclear weapons, although they would have the capability to do so. Which of the following, if any, comes closest to your view about renewing Britain's Trident submarines?

(JAN16)Q17. As you may know there is a debate currently on whether or not Britain should replace its Trident submarines which are nearing the end of their life. These are the submarines from which Britain were to launch nuclear missiles if it was ever to do so. In a recent interview, Jeremy Corbyn, the Labour leader, said if these submarines are replaced they 'don't have to have nuclear warheads on them'. This would mean the submarines would be replaced but do not carry nuclear weapons, although they would have the capability to do so. Which of the following, if any, comes closest to your view about renewing Britain's Trident submarines?
