

President Obama's Approval among Hispanics Drops Six Points since June

56% Approval Rating among Hispanics is now Nine Points Higher than among All U.S. Adults

Ipsos Public Affairs

Public Release Date: December 22, 2011 6:00 am EST

Ipsos Public Affairs is a non-partisan, objective, survey-based research practice made up of seasoned professionals. We conduct strategic research initiatives for a diverse number of American and international organizations, based not only on public opinion research, but elite stakeholder, corporate, and media opinion research.

Ipsos Public Affairs conducts public opinion polling among U.S. Hispanics on behalf of Telemundo. Ipsos Public Affairs is a member of the Ipsos Group, a leading global survey-based market research company. We provide boutique-style customer service and work closely with our clients, while also undertaking global research.

To learn more, visit: www.ipsos-pa.com

For copies of other news releases, please visit: www.ipsos-na.com/news/.

President Obama's Approval among Hispanics Drops Six Points since June

56% Approval Rating among Hispanics is just Nine Points Higher than among All U.S. Adults

New York, NY – A recent Ipsos-Telemundo Poll indicates that just over half of U.S Hispanic adults (56%) approve the way Barack Obama is handling his job as President while 35 percent disapprove of it. While still a majority, the proportion of Hispanics who approve of how President Obama is handling his job keeps shrinking. An Ipsos-Telemundo Poll released in June 2011, found that Obama's approval was at 62% at the time, already considerably lower than the 86% who approved back in April of 2009 – when the President marked his first 100 days in office. Overall, the President's approval rating among Hispanics has dropped 30 points since April, 2009.

Hispanics Seem more Disillusioned than the General Public

While President Obama's approval ratings among Hispanics continue to be higher than among the U.S public at large (56% vs. 47%), the gap between both audiences narrowed by three percentage points since June 2011 (62% vs. 50%, respectively), and by 14 percentage points when compared to April 2009 (86% vs. 63%). The gap between Hispanics who approve of President Obama, and adults from the general public who do so, has reduced from 23 points in April 2009, to 12 points in June 2011, to just nine points in December, 2011. These results suggest that while President Obama's approval has been dropping since he took office, the disillusion among Hispanics is more pronounced than among the general public.

However, interesting differences emerge when those who strongly approve and those who strongly disapprove are compared. While the proportion of Hispanics and adults from the general public who strongly approve of the way President Obama is handling his job is similar (20% vs. 21% respectively), there is a significant gap between both audiences when it comes to those who strongly disapprove. While just 14% of Hispanics strongly disapprove of the way President Obama is handling his job, a full 32% of adults from the public at large do; an 18 point gap.

These are some of the findings of an Ipsos-Telemundo poll conducted November 25 – December 12, 2011 with a nationally representative sample of 519 Hispanics aged 18 and older, interviewed by telephone via Ipsos' U.S. Hispanic Omnibus. The findings among the U.S. population at large are based on an Ipsos Reuters poll conducted December 8 - 12, 2011 with a nationally representative, randomly selected sample of 1,102 adults aged 18 and older across the United States interviewed via Ipsos' U.S. Express Telephone Omnibus.

With samples of these sizes, the results are considered accurate within 4 and 3 percentage points respectively, 19 times out of 20, of what they would have been had the entire adult population of Hispanics, and the entire population of adults in the U.S. been polled.

All sample surveys and polls may be subject to other sources of error, including, but not limited to coverage error, and measurement error. These data were weighted to ensure that the sample's composition reflects that of the actual U.S. population according to U.S. Census figures. For the survey, respondents had the option to be interviewed in English or Spanish.

###

For more information on this news release, please contact:

Julio Franco
Senior Research Manager, Ipsos Public Affairs
New York, NY
646-313-6117

Releases are available at: <http://www.ipsos-na.com/news/>

About Ipsos

Ipsos is a leading global survey-based market research company, owned and managed by research professionals that helps interpret, simulate, and anticipate the needs and responses of consumers, customers, and citizens around the world. Member companies assess market potential and interpret market trends to develop and test emergent or existing products or services, and build brands. They also test advertising and study audience responses to various media, and measure public opinion around the globe.

They help clients create long-term relationships with their customers, stakeholders or other constituencies. Ipsos member companies offer expertise in advertising, customer loyalty, marketing, media, and public affairs research, as well as forecasting, modeling, and consulting and offers a full line of custom, syndicated, omnibus, panel, and online research products and services, guided by industry experts and bolstered by advanced analytics and methodologies. The company was founded in 1975 and has been publicly traded since 1999. In 2010, Ipsos generated global revenues of €1,140.8 million ($1.6 billion U.S.). Visit www.ipsos.com to learn more about Ipsos offerings and capabilities.