Ipsos

Core Political Data

The precision of the Reuters/Ipsos online polls is measured using a credibility interval.

In this case, the poll has a credibility interval of plus or minus the following percentage points

| 3.5	3.9	6.1	6.4	8.6
All Adults	All Registered Voters	Registered Democrats	Registered Republicans	Registered Independents

For more information about credibility intervals, please see the appendix.

Core Political Data

- The data were weighted to the U.S. current population data by:
  - Gender
  - Age
  - Education
  - Ethnicity
  - Region

- Statistical margins of error are not applicable to online polls.
- All sample surveys and polls may be subject to other sources of error, including, but not limited to coverage error and measurement error.
- Figures marked by an asterisk (*) indicate a percentage value of greater than zero but less than one half of one per cent.
- Where figures do not sum to 100, this is due to the effects of rounding.

It therefore makes sense that most think all children should be required to be vaccinated for measles, regardless of their parents' objections.

85%

…unless they are prohibited for medical reasons?
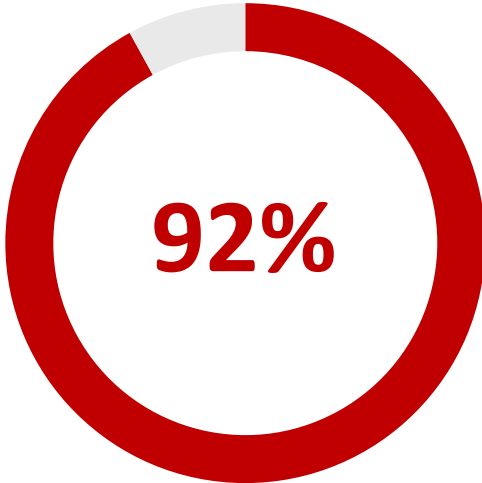

77%

…even if their parents personally object to vaccinations?

Question: In your opinion, should all children be required to get the measles vaccination… (% Yes, required)

Republicans are also more likely to believe the practice is standard and intended to improve counts of people everywhere, while Democrats are more likely to believe it is designed to enforce immigration laws and undercount immigrants.

All Americans: 30%, 26%, 21%, 8%, 2%, 13%

Republicans: 37%, 24%, 27%, 6%, 1%, 5%

Democrats: 25%, 30%, 18%, 11%, 3%, 14%

Independents: 29%, 21%, 22%, 8%, 3%, 18%

- This is a standard recordkeeping and reporting procedure
- Help enforce US immigration laws and detain illegal immigrants
- Improve counts of U.S. citizens in every community
- Undercount immigrant communities
- Other
- Don't Know

Question: During the next Census, you may be asked about your citizenship status. What do you think is the primary reason this information is being collected?
