

Since the events of September 11th, the federal government has done a number of things to deal with Canada's national security and our economy. For each one, I'd like you to tell me if what the federal government has done in this area is too much, not enough, or enough. So, do you think that the federal government has done too much, not enough, or enough with respect to its efforts to: Stimulate the economy to make sure Canada does not slip into a recession ?
