

4. Now that mayor Ford has been in office for 100 days, are you more confident, less confident or neither/more or less confident in the future of the city of Toronto than you were last November before the Municipal election?

5_1. (There is enough waste and inefficiency at City Hall that $774 million could very well be cut from the operating budget and still keep current programs in place) Toronto City Council has approved the 2011 $9.383-billion operating budget for the city. By repealing the vehicle tax and holding the line on property taxes to a zero percent increase, it's likely that an estimated $774 million budget shortfall for next year's budget will have to be made up by either cutting some programs and services, finding money-saving efficiencies throughout City Hall, raising some taxes or a combination of the three. 5. (Low2box Summary) Toronto City Council has approved the 2011 $9.383-billion operating budget for the city. By repealing the vehicle tax and holding the line on property taxes to a zero percent increase, it's likely that an estimated $774 million budget shortfall for next year's budget will have to be made up by either cutting some programs and services, finding money-saving efficiencies throughout City Hall, raising some taxes or a combination of the three. Please indicate the extent to which you agree or disagree with the following statements?
